Mr. Kikawa has twelve years of experience as a public prosecutor at the Public Prosecutors' Offices and at the Ministry of Justice. For the past eleven years, since 2012, he has been in private practice, focusing on the following areas:

[Administrative investigation defense]

Mr. Kikawa defends clients from administrative investigations in the context of various regulatory laws. He focuses on defensive strategies to avoid the issuing of serious administrative dispositions against his clients, such as revocations of their business licenses or permits, or monetary penalties. These defense strategies are implemented during client hearings, exculpatory proceedings, and provisional injunctions.

[Criminal law]

Mr. Kikawa advises his clients on a wide range of criminal matters including those related to regulations on bribery and gambling, and extradition proceedings.

He handles criminal defense especially for his English-speaking clients. He also represents his clients on criminal complaints against their executives and employees for misconduct such as embezzlement, breach of trust, and the unauthorized acquisition of trade secrets.

[Internal investigations]

Drawing on his experience as a prosecutor, Mr. Kikawa conducts investigations of internal corporate wrongdoings and malpractice. In particular, he has vast experience with product quality issues involving complex technical factors.

[Regulations on representation, advertising, and solicitation (Consumer law)]

Mr. Kikawa provides a wide range of legal services, from preventive compliance advice to administrative and criminal investigation defense, regarding matters of representation, advertising, and solicitation (consumer law), including matters governed by the Misleading Representation Act, the Pharmaceuticals and Medical Devices Act, the Medical Care Act and the Specified Commercial Transactions Act.

[Medical disputes and Healthcare-related regulations]

Based on his experience as chief prosecutor of medical affairs at the Tokyo Public Prosecutors' Office, where he led investigations in serious medical malpractice cases, Mr. Kikawa represents medical institutions in medical disputes. He also has a great deal of experience providing advice on matters governed by medical, pharmaceutical and healthcare law and regulations, such as those governed by the Medical Care Act, the Medical Practitioners' Act, the Pharmaceuticals and Medical Devices Act and the Health Promotion Act.

[Immigration]

Mr. Kikawa was in charge of the 2009 amendment to the Immigration Control and Refugee Recognition Act. Based on this experience, he is able to provide decisive advice on legal issues relating to the obtaining of visas and residence status for foreign nationals.
